

The final couple of weeks of October are busy for Special Olympics Southern California (SOSC), including a pair of fun events for local enforcement. Law Enforcement Torch Run for SOSC will host the annual Red Robin Tip-A-Cop tomorrow, Thursday, and then host the inaugural Dunkin' Donuts Cop on a Rooftop. Both are aimed at raising awareness and funds for SOSC athletes. Here is a taste of what is happening as we head closer to the 2017 Fall Games on Nov. 11-12:

COMING UP

Red Robin Hosts Annual Tip-A-Cop

Red Robin Gourmet Burgers and Brews restaurants will go blue as law enforcement members "serve" guests in a different way to support Special Olympics Southern California. Red Robin's 12th annual Tip-A-Cop® event will take place tomorrow (Thursday, Oct. 19) from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. at 41 restaurants throughout Southern California. ### A Chance to 'Engage With Athletes'

Bernie Colon has been a police officer for nearly 28 years and has enjoyed several experiences throughout his career. However, it is his involvement with Special Olympics that has been "by far one of the most rewarding," and he makes it a point to get new officers involved. Colon, currently the captain of the San Diego Police Department, brought a handful of officers along to last Saturday's Special Olympics San Diego Regional Fall Games at the Rancho Bernardo Recreation Center. ### LETR to Camp Out on Dunkin' Donuts' Rooftops

Dunkin' Donuts, America's all-day, everyday stop for coffee and baked goods, has challenged law enforcement agencies throughout Southern California to camp out on its roofs in support of Special Olympics Southern California on Oct. 27. Guests of Dunkin' Donuts will be encouraged to donate to the cause and all who take part will receive a coupon for one free medium hot or iced coffee. More: <https://wp.me/p8DSMZ-yp>
